

U.S. Put Far Down List In Admitting Hungarians

17 JUN 1957
CSM
By the Associated Press

New York

The United States ranks 13th on the basis of total population, among nations admitting refugees from the revolt in Hungary last year, Clairborne Pell, vice-president of the International Rescue Committee, reported.

Mr. Pell said many refugees still in camps in Austria harbor "a considerable degree of hostility toward the American Government."
